PITTSBURGH CLERGYMAN SPEAKS AT DEDICATION

New St. Luke's Evangelical Edifice at Croydon Filled For Ceremony

IS MUCH ADMIRER

CROYDON, Mar. 1.—A gathering of 250 people yesterday afternoon witnessed the dedicatory program in the new edifice of St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran congregation, on State Road.

The Rev. Theodore Martens, of Pittsburgh, who delivered the dedicatory message, based his sermon on the words of the Disciples when Jesus entered the Temple at Jerusalem and drove out the money-changers: "The zeal of Thine house hath eaten me up."

The altar service was in charge of the pastor, the Rev. Theodore Kohlmeier; and the part played by the deacons and members of the church council in the ceremony was that of carrying the communion-ware, the Bible and books into the church of the new church.

This ceremony took place at 3:30 o'clock, the final service being held in the old edifice at 11 a. m. The speaker, the Rev. Martens, played an important part in organization of the congregation 10 years ago.

For the evening service the Rev. T. Fischer, Cheltenham, dwelt in his sermon on the following verse of Scripture: "Hitherto that the Lord helped us."

Several members of the clergy from Trenton, N. J., and Philadelphia, were present.

Even though the weather was inclement the church which provides accommodations for 200, was more than filled during the afternoon. The attractive structure of grey Llanerch stone, measuring 67x26 feet, was greatly admired; as were also the furnishings, vestments, and other equipment.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Each year the outstanding member of the senior class of Southampton high school may receive a reward, if plans of the P. T. A. are carried out. The establishment of a permanent award was discussed at length by members of the Parent-Teacher Association, with 50 attending. Clayton Stokes presided, and a report was given by Stanley Saurman, chairman of sidewalk repair committee of Southampton Chamber of Commerce.

The Southampton Symphonettes gave selections prior to the business. Doylestown schools will be represented at the 14th annual interscholastic spelling bee at Peirce School, Philadelphia, on March 15th by Hugh Boyd, Bladys Derstine, Grace Berkey, Doris Saxton and Cora Summers. Those named as alternates are: Virginia Barnes and Dorothy Wood. All are students at the county seat high school.

The following high schools have accepted the Peirce School's invitation to compete:

Ambler, Barnegat, Bensalem Township, Bristol, Buckingham, Chester, Landing, New Hope, Newtown, North Wales, Penn's Grove, Quakertown, Riversville, Robesonia, Sellersville, Perkaskie, Stroudsburg, Toms River, Tuckerton, Upper Moreland township, and Womelsdorf.

Several women attended a meeting of Morrisville school board, and presented a petition with 100 signers for a new school building to replace the present two-room frame structure on the corner of Harper and West Hendrickson avenues, Morrisville.

It is said officials are favorable to a new building there, because the present one is considered inadequate and not satisfactory from a health standpoint.

WPA assistance will be sought, but a vote of the people, it is explained, will be necessary before the work can be started.

Tents are to be furnished Newtown Boy Scouts, through kindness of members of the Scout Auxiliary. The regulation tents will be used for the Spring activities. Some funds were raised through a recent bake sale; and a supper is planned for March 8th.

A dinner-meeting is arranged for Bucks County Fruit Growers Association, according to an announcement by Ralph T. Crowell, president. The affair is scheduled for Monday evening, March 11th, the gathering to be addressed by Professor J. C. Ruef, of Pennsylvania State College.

The subject of Prof. Ruef will be "Orchard Management;" and music for the occasion will be in charge of Frank Stevens.

Wheel On Car Breaks; Nearly Causes Crash

A serious derailment of a Pennsylvania Railroad baggage train was narrowly averted shortly before 3 a. m. yesterday when a wheel and a journal box on a baggage car of a New York-Philadelphia train broke on the railroad's main line near Cottman street, Tacony. No one was hurt.

The train had left New York at 1:25 a. m. and was proceeding at a fast speed when the wheel broke. The engineer, realizing the nature of the accident on the baggage car, which was the last of the four cars making up the train, brought the string of cars to a gradual halt without derailling the car.

The crew of the train detached the crippled car, which was loaded with newspapers, and proceeded to North Philadelphia Station. A wrecking car was sent to tow the baggage car to the yards, where its cargo was transferred to another car.

Officials of the railroad explained the action of the engineer in bringing the train to a gradual halt, rather than to an abrupt air-brake stop, probably averted a derailment and possible injury to the train crew.

Mine Workings Collapse Causes Terror

Shenandoah, Mar. 4.—One thousand residents in the northern district of this anthracite mine community were roused from sleep in terror early today by the collapse of underground mine workings. Pavings throughout the four block area caved in, settling in some places between 2 inches and 3 feet. Gas mains, water pipes and power lines were shattered.

Damage unofficially was estimated at $100,000.

Scores of sleeping householders were knocked from bed and interior damage was done in many of the 250 homes affected by the cave-in. Display windows in a number of business establishments were smashed and frame-work damaged.

Fearing an earthquake, many of the frightened residents fled to the street in their night clothing, and police later had difficulty in persuading them to return to their homes.

Fears mounted momentarily as fumes from broken gas mains filled the neighborhood. Police reserves and all available ambulances were rushed into the district but there were no casualties.

The four block section built over the Keeley Run Mine, said to have been operated by Tony Rose of Hazleton, was endangered, according to police investigators.

The Shenandoah Junior High School and a large warehouse were among the structures effected, but damage could not be placed immediately. A gaping crater nearly six feet deep was created in the street lined by business houses. The entire section was roped off, traffic was re-routed and thoroughfares were patrolled by city policemen.

Citizens reported that they protested last week to the State Department of Mines at Harrisburg.

Germans Put On Barrage of Planes

Paris, Mar. 4.—In an attempt to cut off Allied reconnaissance flights, Germany now is throwing a virtual barrage of pursuit planes across the western wall, military dispatches to Paris revealed today.

The German flights across the border are growing more extensive daily, and scores of Messerschmitt and Heinkel fighter patrols numbering between seven and twenty-one planes are roaring back and forth across the frontier. As a result the Germans yesterday engaged two different reconnaissance groups and screaming air fights followed.

A Dog's Life?

(By "The Stroller")
"A pedicure for your dog, sir?" No feeling about this—for a certain Great Dane owned by a Radcliffe street man has bright red nails on each front paw.

And the nails are large enough for all to see, for a Dane is a big fellow.

Why the brilliant polish was not placed on the nails of the hind feet we are at a loss to say. And adding a dash of sound to the dash of color, the dog boasts of a large bell on his collar.

Early Morning Blaze Damages Karp's Cafe

Karp's Cafe, second floor of 1836 Farragut avenue, was considerably damaged by fire early today. The blaze, it is believed, was caused by defective wiring. The loss may reach $1,000, according to Benedict Karp, son of the owner.

Mr. Karp, returning from Trenton at about 2:15 this morning, saw a reflection through a window of the cafe. At first he thought it was a reflection of a light from the opposite side of the street. But upon investigation he found it was a real fire. He attempted to extinguish the blaze himself, but later called the Bristol Consolidated firemen.

The flames considerably damaged the ceiling.

The firemen, summoned during the height of the rainstorm, responded with three pieces of apparatus, and soon had the blaze under control.

MANY GUESTS WITNESS HANKIN-DRIES WEDDING

Ceremony in Philadelphia Hotel is Very Brilliant Affair

HONEYMOON IN FLORIDA

A marriage ceremony, impressive and beautiful, witnessed by 300 wedding guests in the Crystal Ballroom of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia, last evening, united Miss Lillian Dries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dries, Pond and Market streets, and Allen Hankin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hankin, 5204 Gairnor Road, Philadelphia.

Rabbi Simon Greenberg, of Har Zion Temple, Philadelphia, performed the rites, which culminated in the crushing of the wine-glass under the heel of the groom, after he and the bride had quaffed its contents. This age-old custom, that of splintering the glass, carried out by members of the Jewish race at marriage ceremonies, signifies long life and happiness for the couple plighting their vows.

As the words of advice fell from the lips of the Rabbi, he told the two taking the solemn step of the sacredness of the ceremony, reminding that their love should be as endless as the roundness of the wedding ring with which they sealed their vows.

Selections on the ballroom organ at the hour of seven witnessed the start of the ceremony, and previous to the entrance of the bride party, Miss Beatrice Margolis, Philadelphia, sang "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "In the Shadow of the Night," "O Promise Me" and "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes."

A bridal party of 23 made their way slowly down the grand staircase, and through the aisle edged with white silk ribbon and flanked by tall baskets of gladioli and fern, which lead to the white silk canopied altar. Preceding the bride were her affianced husband accompanied by his father, the mothers of the contracting parties, grandparents of the bride, and a bridal party composed of a matron of honor, five bridesmaids, best man, and five ushers.

The bridal march from "Lohengrin" was used by the organist, A. Templeton, Philadelphia, as the bride made her appearance.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

"Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

The Answer Is "Phooey"

Washington, March 2.

THERE is a type of present-day politician and newspaper writer who, when bereft of other ideas, always falls back upon the noble notion that it is fine stuff to sock Mr. Herbert Hoover. Their pleasing custom is to picture him as a sinister and scheming fellow, inept, sour, selfish, destitute of honor and devoid of shame.

MOSTLY, this is the hangover result of the great smearing campaign conducted by Mr. Raskob's paid propagandists from 1928 to 1932 in which so many "gentlemen of the press" heartily co-operated. Though some of these have since expressed regret and there have been evidences that the public was badly overfed with the product, the smaller bore among the politicians and the more prejudiced of the journalists still keep it up. Recently, these have been stimulated by the Newsweek poll, which showed that among Washington correspondents—largely a hostile group—many more regarded him as better qualified for the Presidency than any Republican in the country.

AT once there was an outbreak of anti-Hoover sniping. Stories appeared of a "junta" (pompous word) between Mr. Landon and Mr. Martin to prevent Mr. Hoover from "capturing the nomination for himself." Mr. Hoover was described as an "Old Guardsman" and, of course, those in the "junta," as liberals, although any reasonably informed person knows that the real Old Guard detested Mr. Hoover, opposed his nomination in 1928, were poisonously antagonistic while he was in the White House and still—such as remain of them—cordially hate him.

NEVERTHELESS, for the publicity purposes of these little politicians

IN THE SPRING, ETC.

Political observers differ as to the potency of the anti-third term tradition; but John McGraw won four straight pennants and finished a close second the fifth year. So the Red Sox and six other American League teams cannot rely on any infallible jinx to keep the Yankees from making it five straight.

International law is something which belligerents make and unmake as they go along, without consulting neutrals; and Judge Landis certainly gave a lot of young ball-players a break with his ruling against big league "farms." Pretty soft for that youngster McCoy, huh? Forty grand isn't hard to take. Wonder how Connie Mack enjoyed giving it.

Financial experts probably could work out some way of getting the budget back into balance, if the politicians would give them a chance; but how about Carl Hubbell's arm? Yes, the Giants' great old meal ticket will be 37 years old this summer; but don't forget that he was the second most effective pitcher in the National League last year, in spite of that operation on his arm.

Did Jim Farley outsmart John Hamilton in the matter of convention dates? Whatever the answer, the Brooklyn Dodgers will be sure to forfeit their reputation for daffiness—and perhaps regain a little of the fans' affections—if they play as fast and sensible baseball in 1940 as they did in 1939.

This time was intended to contain something about world affairs. But how can a commentator keep his mind on such things, now that the major league baseball teams are beginning their spring training?

WEARY OF FRYING PAN

Love for the Nazi fatherland appears to be on the wane, if the number of persons who plan to make their exit from that country is any indication.

The United States State Department has just announced that the total number of aliens registered for immigration at American consular offices as of last June 30 was 309,782 from Germany proper. Since that date, it is reported, the total registrations from Germany have increased. It can be assumed that many thousands living in Nazi-subjugated Poland recently have signified their intentions to come to America.

No one truthfully can say that this widespread desire to leave the Nazi "paradise" springs from glowing accounts of the United States published in German newspapers. American democracy does not enjoy a good press in the Nazi domain, where all newspapers are under the domination of Hitler. In fact, the diatribes already published against the American form of government run into millions of words. Nor do the German papers minimize the "crime situation" in the United States.

It is fair to surmise that many Germans do not believe these newspaper accounts stressing the decay and degeneration of the domain of Uncle Sam. Many residents of Nazi Germany have visited these shores still more have relatives living in the United States and Canada. They are well aware that America is not perishing, and that it still is the land of the free.

Those who do believe the journalistic lies about the United States and still desire to come here must have arrived at the conclusion that the fire is to be preferred to the slow torture of the Nazi frying pan.

With Power also to arrest, imprison and punish rioters and breakers of the peace, and to bind them and all other offenders, and persons of evil fame, to the peace and good behaviour, as fully and effectually as any of the justices of the peace of the said County may or can do; and return or bring the Recognizances by them to be taken to the Court of Quarter-Session for the said County. ## Many Guests Witness Hankin-Dries Wedding were of ivory toned satin, and she carried an arm bouquet of calla lilies.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Harry Dries, Bristol, a sister-in-law of the bride. Her choice for the wedding was chartreuse silk jersey, it being patterned with a draped bodice and full skirt. With this was worn a coral toned silk jersey draped jacket, and silver slippers; and her arm bouquet was of talisman roses. Flowers of blending tone adorned her hair.

Chosen for bridesmaids by the former Miss Dries were her cousin, Miss Florence Horowitz, Trenton, N. J.; the Misses Jean and Sylvia Gold, Philadelphia, cousins of the groom; and the Misses Mirzi Hoffman and Evelyn Noble, Philadelphia.

Miss Hoffman was attired in a dress of light blue, the skirt of net being topped by a bodice of silvery blue lame, with puffed sleeves. Miss Horowitz chose light green net with a golden jacket enhancing the gown. Cap sleeves were formed of pale green net draped from the center of the back to the front of the bodice. For the ceremony Miss Sylvia Gold was attired in blue, the bodice being fashioned of lame and the sleeves being puffed; with skirt of net. Shell pink net formed the gown of Miss Jean Gold, this also having a tight bodice and full skirt. Miss Noble wore a two-tone blue gown, fashioned similar to those of the other maids, it being of golden-blue lame and net.

Each of these attendants wore silver slippers, and carried colonial bouquets to blend with the tones of their gowns. In their hair were flowers the same shade as their dresses, and from these fell shoulder length veils in like colors. They entered the ball-room separately, those with gowns of blue alternating with those of other tones.

The groom was attended by his brother, Bernard Hankin, Philadelphia, as best man; and the ushers were inclusive of: Samuel Dries, Bristol, brother of the bride; William Halpern, Harold Halpern, Herbert Brenner and Leon Saltz, Philadelphia.

The grandparents of the bride who likewise preceded the attendants to a place of honor near the altar are Mr. and Mrs. I. Horowitz, Trenton, N. J.; and Mr. and Mrs. W. Glazer, Philadelphia, formerly of Bristol.

Mrs. Dries, the mother of the bride, was gowned in dusty rose marquisette and lace. Short puffed sleeves, a gathered bodice, and long, full skirt featured. Her corsage was of orchids, and she wore slippers of silver. Mrs. Hankin, mother of the bride-groom, selected for the affair, chiffon of cornflower blue shade. Her slippers matched the gown, and she wore deep-purple orchids.

With members of the bridal party and relatives in the receiving line, Mr. and Mrs. Hankin were showered with congratulations in an ante-room immediately after the ceremony.

A bounteous dinner featured the reception, with an orchestra providing dinner and dance music in the ball-room.

The table for the bridal party was arranged on a dais at the front of the ball-room, with the fore-ground appearing as a garden of flowers and ferns, a fountain of water bubbling in the center. Cut flowers in vases were profusely arranged on this table, as well as on the tables for the wedding guests grouped about the ballroom.

Guests invited to witness the ceremony included many prominent in business and political life, as well as relatives and friends, coming from New York, Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Trenton, Pittsburgh, Camden, Allentown, Doylestown, Bristol and other points.

A two weeks' sojourn at Miami Beach, Florida, is being participated in by Mr. and Mrs. Hankin, who left today for the South, making the journey by train. Mrs. Hankin travelled in a jersey dress featuring a blouse of white, with black skirt, it having an Eton jacket of black and white, set off by a wide, red leather belt. Her large black felt hat was an off-the-face model; and slippers and bag of black gabardine had trim of patent. White kid gloves were worn.

The couple will reside at 1453 Van-Kirk street, Philadelphia. Mrs. Hankin is a graduate of Bristol high school, and of Peirce Business College, Philadelphia. The groom is a graduate of Brown Preparatory School, Philadelphia, and Hemphill-Deisel School, Detroit, Mich.

The CAIRO GARTER MUKDAS By VAN DYCK MASON

SYNOPSIS

Assisting Major Bruce Kilgour of the British Intelligence Service on a special assignment, Captain North of the U. S. Army Intelligence, boards the S. S. Fort Lucknow at sea, in the dead of night. Kilgour keeps him in ignorance regarding their mission except to infer that Sir George Ruthven, in Cairo, will enlighten the Captain. North is instructed to act as though he and Kilgour are strangers. Next day, M. Levasseur, a sardonic Frenchman, is extremely curious to learn why the ship stopped. Dr. Larkin Ladd, noted Egyptologist, joins them. Then Richard Follonsbee introduces himself. The latter claims he sells sewing machines and reapers for Heinemann and Schlager. North is instantly interested for that concern manufactures arms. Levasseur, too, lost his look of boredom. Only Dr. Ladd seems disinterested. Follonsbee, seized with an attack of belated caution, is relieved when Lolita Ladd appears and changes the subject. North is surprised to see Colonel Stag Melborne, soldier of fortune, aboard. The party adjourns for dinner where they are all seated at the Captain's table. There North meets the stunning Natika Black, English by name but French or Greek in appearance; and Monsieur Philipides, retired president of the Italo-Hellenic Chemical Works which, he says, manufactures "aniline dye." North recalls, however, that poison gas is the company's major product. Natika suspects that it was North who boarded the liner during the night. Ladd's wife, Zara, and an Egyptian named Ben Yamen Hasid did not come to dinner.

CHAPTER V

The Fort Lucknow's captain proved to be typical of his profession. His manner was bluff and hearty, yet only mechanically so, North thought, and underneath it was a suggestion of tenseness and caution. Only briefly did he acknowledge the new arrival's presence and when Dr. Ladd inquired pointblank for an explanation of the mysterious halt off Gibraltar he merely said that official dispatches had been taken aboard—and changed the subject.

It was a company intriguing far beyond the usual, but of them all Natika Black and Follonsbee puzzled North most. Why the dickens did the latter seem so eager and yet wary of asserting himself?

"Well, Mr. Follonsbee," Dr. Ladd suggested briskly, "Lolita tells me you intended to be very busy in Cairo?"

"Ah, really?" Natika Black leaned over the table, treating the young businessman to a dazzling smile. "Might one ask what you do, Mr. Follonsbee?"

"Oh, he's with Heinemann and Schlager," the captain supplied through a mouthful of crab flukes. "They're the big Czechish munitions dealers, you know."

"Only as a side line, Captain. A mere side line," Follonsbee hurriedly corrected and gave the table an uneasy smile. "Principally we manufacture motorcycles and sewing machines and—"

"—washing machines?" politely suggested Levasseur.

"Yes, washing machines," agreed the unhappy young salesman. "That's right. In fact, we do quite a business in typewriters. That's really what I'm banking on."

"Really? How very interesting," observed M. Philipides nodding to himself. "One would scarcely imagine you could sell so many machines in an Arabic-speaking country."

"But, tut, my friend," Dr. Ladd objected cheerily. "Every day more Egyptians are employing the Roman alphabet. Atatürk started the ball rolling in Turkey. In another fifty years I wager written Arabic will be as obsolete as hieroglyphics are today." He half turned about. "What is it, Hart?"

At Dr. Ladd's elbow had appeared a solidly built individual whose countenance suggested a blank page, so perfectly devoid of expression was it. He bowed like a correct automaton.

In a soft, hoarse voice the newcomer spoke. "Beg pardon, Doctor, Mrs. Ladd wishes you to come. Do you mind?"

"Mind? Of course not. Pray tell Mrs. Ladd I will join her at once. Dear, dear, such abominable weather! Will you excuse me, Captain?"

He disappeared in company with the blank-faced Mr. Hart who, Lolita explained, was her father's secretary.

"You managed that very cleverly," North said to the ship's captain as they reached the bridge ladder. . . .

"I'm sure you're very fortunate in having such a distinguished father, Miss Ladd," Captain Diston commented. "Everyone in Cairo is filled with admiration for his accomplishments and ambitions!"

"I think he's pretty swell myself," she cried and her eyes lit with enthusiasm. "Shows me what I missed all these years at school."

Levasseur at last put down his dessert spoon and looked hopefully down the table. "I was wondering whether any or all of you would take coffee and liqueurs with me in the Bacchante Room? Perhaps a bridge game later?"

The various women all accepted, Natika Black with an air of detached amusement.

"How about it, Mr. Follonsbee?"

The salesman's alert and eager features had suddenly become grave and were pursing heavily as he said. "Thanks just the same, Monsieur. I—I've some work to do in my cabin. I might come up to the smoking room later on, though."

"Let us hope so. And you?" Levasseur's calm gray eyes shifted to North who nodded and, having produced his pipe, was mechanically testing his pockets.

He shrugged. "All out of tobacco. Well, I suppose the lounge steward will have some."

"Oh, don't do that. It's dreadful stuff," Follonsbee advised. "I, er, I've got an extra good tobacco, my own mixture. He turned, anxiously surveying North as if he found a measure of relief in viewing the American's humorously wise expression. "If you'll stop by at my cabin—it's C-218—I'd very gladly give you enough to last you to Alexandria."

So unskillfully had Richard Follonsbee disguised an urgency that almost everyone glanced at the salesman. Lolita Ladd's bright lips became curved in a brief, almost sympathetic smile. Had M. Philipides' eyes of a vitreous pale blue narrowed a little? As for Natika Black, she was with remarkable interest staring at a single yellow rose set before her.

The Fort Lucknow's great glittering dining saloon was all but empty when Captain Diston drained the last of his coffee and arose.

"Well, ladies and gentlemen, have a good time, it's back on the bridge for me. By the bye, Captain North,

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL THEATRE

With Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell in the maddest, merriest whirlwind of a romance ever brought to the screen, "His Girl Friday" opened yesterday at the Bristol Theatre.

With Ralph Bellamy heading a splendid supporting cast, "His Girl Friday" rates all the encomiums in the lexicon of a critic. It's gay, it's delightful, it's fast and furious, it's wild and witty and outrageously racy.

GRAND THEATRE

Magnificent, awe-inspiring, amazingly impressive and eye-dazzling! These words best describe "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which opened its long-awaited engagement at the Grand Theatre last night.

A remarkable and convincing achievement in every department from basic idea to actual performance, "The Hunchback," can safely be hailed as the most spectacular motion picture Hollywood has produced in the last decade, and in this writer's judgment it ranks with the screen's stupendous films—of which there are very, very few!

RITZ THEATRE

Shifting with a deft pace from baby parties to bizarre crime, from marital mirth to murder thrills, and from palatial Long Island estates to the dives of New York, "Another Thin Man," latest of the sparkling "Thin Man" series, comes today to the Ritz Theatre.

It teams that favorite screen pair, William Powell and Myrna Loy, once again as the shrewd and witty detective Nick Charles and his charming but somewhat daffy wife, Nora.

HIGH SCHOOL GYM TEAM NOSES OUT CHELTENHAM TEAM

Cardinal and Gray Boys Win By the Narrow Margin of One Point

FINAL SCORE IS 32 TO 31

Cards Move Out of The Basement and Hop Into Third Place

CHELTENHAM, Mar. 4.—Nosed out by the same score last week, the Cardinal and Gray gymnasts came back to chalk up a 32-31 decision over the Cheltenham High aerialists here in the final meet of the 1940 Philadelphia Suburban Gymnastic League season.

As a result of the triumph, the Cards moved out of a tie for the league basement and hopped into third place, leaving the losing Cheltenham club to occupy the cellar for the second straight season.

But Bristol had to apply the pressure to finally come up with the verdict. For they trailed by 6 points, going into the last event, which was the second rope climb trial. And they needed at least eight of the nine points to gain the decision. Five or six would not be enough. Therefore, they had to take the first two places to cop the meet.

However, Johnny Melidio and Frank Kryven teamed up nicely to do the job for the visitors. Melidio rung the bell in 6.6 to grab first place while Kryven took the runner up spot by scaling the rope in 7.4 seconds, which was just 3 seconds better than Joe Oswald's time of 7.7 for third place.

HIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Mar. 4.—Pictured above is the "John D. Plant Cup," as well as the four Peddie graduates to whom it has been awarded, the donor, and John D. Plant, for whom it is named. This Cup is awarded annually by The Peddie School Faculty Committee of Athletics to that Peddie graduate, who, during the preceding year, has been outstanding among Peddie men in college athletics.

The first recipient of the Cup was Lawrence M. Kelley of Williamsport, Pa., who is pictured in the lower right-hand corner. Kelley graduated from Peddie in 1933 and from Yale in 1937 where he was captain of the football and basketball teams. He is now coaching football and teaching history at Peddie.

In the lower left-hand corner is Merrill N. Davis of Bradford, Pa., Peddie 1934, Dartmouth 1938, who was captain and end on the 1937 Dartmouth football team, and the second recipient of the Cup. Last year's recipient of the Cup, William M. Thompson of Passaic, N. J., is in the upper left-hand corner. Thompson graduated from Peddie in 1935 and from Syracuse in 1939 where he was a forward on the varsity basketball team for three years. At present he is Director of Intramural Athletics at Peddie and teaching the Social Studies.

In the upper right-hand corner is Edward W. Clark of Ridgewood, N. J., Peddie 1935, Princeton 1939, to whom the Cup will be awarded on Friday at the thirty-sixth annual dinner of the New York Alumni Association, which will be held at the Waldorf Astoria. Clark graduated from Princeton last June where he was an honor student for two years and a member of the golf team for three years, being captain of last year's team, which won the Eastern Intercollegiate. Clark was awarded numerals in his freshman year for golf and received varsity letters for participation in his three upperclass years. While at Princeton Clark was also Manager of the Triangle Club, President of Charter Club, secretary of the Inter-Club Committee, member of the 1939 Class Memorial Committee, and a cheer leader.

The Great Game of Politics

and their press reflectors, Mr. Hoover is the Old Guardsman and Mr. Landon the great liberal. It is a direct echo of the Kenneth Simpson incident when a year or so ago Mr. Simpson publicly attributed his failure to land the place on the Republican executive committee, now held by ex-Senator Hastings, to the wicked machinations of a reactionary Hoover. There was not a trace of truth in that, but the journalistic friends of Mr. Simpson had a grand time elaborating on it.

A FEW months ago Mr. Simpson walked into Mr. Hoover's rooms in a New York hotel and, in effect, said, "I did a rotten thing and I am ashamed of it. I know the truth and want to apologize." To that Mr. Hoover, in effect, replied, "That's all right. I certainly do not want to discourage anybody in politics who wants to act like a gentleman. Let's go on from here." That was to Mr. Simpson's credit, but it is not to the credit of those who, with so much relish, disseminated Mr. Simpson's original statement, that they have let it stand. Nor is it to their credit now that they are willing to broadcast the suspicions of shoddy politicians, who, judging others by themselves, believe that everybody who takes an active part in party affairs is animated by a base motive.

AS for the Republican nomination, those who know Mr. Hoover best are certain that if he thought the convention would nominate him he would be deeply disturbed. He is 66 years old and has no desire to take on the immense burdens that go with the job. The chances that he will be nominated are almost too remote to discuss. Things in politics do not happen—they are arranged; and, despite the silly apprehensions of dim-witted members of his party, Mr. Hoover has done no arranging, is doing no arranging and will not do any arranging.

HE has, of course, friends who would like to see him President, but so long continued has been the campaign of calumny against him that even some of the most devoted of these do not think he can be nominated or, if nominated, elected. There is reason to believe that Mr. Hoover feels that way himself. In any event, it is a fact that he has not directly or indirectly personally lifted a finger to "promote himself politically." He is tremendously interested in getting the best possible ticket and the best possible platform out of the Republican convention, because he very deeply believes that if this country is to be saved from collapse the New Dealers have got to be swept out and a few basic things done in the first ninety days of a new Administration to restore confidence and revive business initiative.

TO this end he has advised those who have come to him for advice of his belief that perhaps the best convention results might be obtained through the selection of high-class uninstructed delegates. What other advice could he give? It appears now that the bulk of the Republican convention—and the Democratic convention, too—will be made up of such uninstructed delegates. Unable to comprehend any politics not based on selfish desire, the breast beaters bleat that this is a Hoover plot to "draft himself." Hearing Mayor LaGuardia's elegant and expressive word, the answer to that is "phooey."
